1. Two new-type aircraft approached from the southwest and circled the Neubrandenburg-Trollenhagen (N 54/U 67) airfield at an altitude of 400 meters for about one hour on 14 March 1950. They had swept-back wings, a noticeably high rudder assembly and gleaming paint.*
2. There was no flying at the field between 13 and 15 March 1950. Twenty-eight single-engine fighters were counted at the parking sites. German civilian laborers resumed construction work at the field. The kind of work underway could not be determined.

* Comment: A fighter regiment equipped with LA-9s is assumed to be stationed in Neubrandenburg. The presence of jet aircraft has not been confirmed. The fighter regiment is apparently now to be equipped with jet aircraft of type 14 planes.
